Contribute to discussions on national issues that affect our schools, students and teachers

“SSAT's Deep Social Justice campaign demonstrated a societal understanding and laid bare a myriad of social injustices for young people, long before the pandemic hit. It was and still is, crucial, in making visible the inequalities and barriers to life that too many children still face. The courage to lead on this and lobby for improvements in equality and equity is typical of SSAT's commitment to 'levelling-up' for all.”
